

VOLUME LIV.

JANESVILLE, WISCONSIN, THURSDAY, JULY 21, 1910.

NUMBER 107.

HEMMED BY FIRE MANY WILL DIE

TOWNS OF BLOOMERVILLE AND HEINMANN CERTAIN OF DE-STRUCTION.

REFUGEES ARE IN DANGER

Persons Fleeing From Flames Elsewhere Now Face Almost Certain Death in Doomed Communities.

Merrill, Wis., July 20.—Several hundred persons of Bloomerville and Heinmann are huddled in by forest fires at the former town with seemingly no means of escape.

The fires having destroyed the railroad tracks for some distance between Bloomerville and Merrill it is hard to reach them.

This situation at Bloomerville is certainly the most desperate of the Heinmann fire, as the four hundred homeless of that village fled to that village only to be confronted by similar peril.

Clonson, north of Bloomerville, is also isolated and the loss of life may be large.

At Waupun.

Waupun, Wis., July 21.—The forest fires in the southeast portion of this country are probably the worst fires ever seen in Marathon Co., and unless the wind ceases ten million feet of standing timber will be destroyed. The fire covered an area of fully ten miles in length and extending east and west.

Information received here from the villages northeast of Merrill give evidence to the reports that many residents of district are cut off by flames.

This information is positive and 700 thus endangered. The largest of these villages encircled by flames is Heinmann, which has a population of 460; Bloomerville, 153 and Clonson, 100.
The country surrounding is one vast forest of hard wood, hemlock and pine wood, and cut over lands so overgrown with brush as to afford much opportunity for the rapid spread of the flames.

MONTREAL MAKES READY FOR GREAT RELIGIOUS MEET

Preparations Already Being Made For
The Twenty-First Eucharistic Congress.

Montreal, July 21.—There are only a few weeks to the opening of the 21st Eucharistic Congress and, in view of the coming event not only to the city of Montreal but to the entire Roman Catholic world of America, preparations are made upon a scale befitting this gathering which is destined to mark an epoch in the history of the Church in America.

Since the first congress of this kind was held in Lille, France, in June 1878, in answer to a call issued by Bishop Gaston de Saur, many Eucharistic Congresses have been held, always in cities intimately connected with some of the most important phases and epochs in the history of the Roman Catholic Church. In consecutive order: Lille, Angers, Lyons, Freiburg, Toulon, Paris, Antwerp, Jerusalem,
Rome, Angers, Namur, Angoulême,
Rome, Tournai, Metz, London and Co-logne were the meeting place of the past Eucharistic Congresses. It will be seen from this list that heretofore but one of the twenty congresses was held outside of Europe, the one which met at Jerusalem. The coming Congress, which will open in Montreal on September 6 and will continue till September 11, will have the distinction of being the second outside of Europe and the first on the American continent.

Montreal had a strong claim for the honor of being selected as the meeting place for the first Eucharistic Congress in America. It is not only an important city in a general way, but closely connected with the establishment and growth of the Roman Catholic Church in America. It is one of the largest and most important centers of the Church on the continent and abounds in historical monuments from the time when Catholic missionaries first carried the blessings of religion to the red men of the Canadian forests.

The Pope will be represented at the coming Congress by Cardinal Vincenzo Vannutelli, Prefect of the Apostolic Signature at Rome, and Cardinal Protector of the Sulphur Order. The Cardinal will arrive in Canada a week or so before the opening of the Congress and will visit several Canadian cities enroute before coming to Montreal. He is expected to arrive here on the day before the opening of the Congress and the most elaborate preparations are being made for his reception. He will be officially greeted in behalf of the City by Mayor J.
G. Gauthier and will then proceed to the Archbishop's palace, where he will be welcomed by Archbishop Bruchési of Montreal. Lord Strathcona has placed his residence at the disposal of the Cardinal Legation during his stay in this city. The solemn official reception of Cardinal Vannutelli by the Congress will be held on the evening of the opening day of the Congress, in St.
James Cathedral.

It is expected that three Cardinals and more than seventy archbishops and bishops will attend the Congress and many of them are scheduled to deliver addresses before the Congress or at the daily reunions to be held in connection with the great gathering.
The program for the six days of the Congress includes many important events: receptions in honor of the representative of the Pope, several pontifmeetings. The solemn procession of the Blessed Sacrament will be held on the afternoon of the closing day, Sunday, September 11.

DECIDED RAWN IS A SELF MURDERER

CHICAGO POLICE REACH THIS DE-CISION THIS MORNING.

WILL ABANDON ALL SEARCH

Claim That President of the Monon Route Ended Own Life and Was Not Shot by a Burglar.

Chicago, July 21.—"Ira G. Rawn committed suicide and the Chicago police will drop the investigation and search for the supposed murderer," said Acting Chief of Police Schuetter today.

Schuetter announced his decision after a long conference with the detectives who had investigated the

I. G. Rawn.

tragedy. All details point to suicide,
according to the detective.

Notwithstanding this the private detectives employed by the Rawn family continued their investigation and steadfastly declared Rawn was killed by a burglar.

The bullet hole in Rawn's night garment was carefully examined by the police and its appearance leads to a suicide bullet.

The hole is surrounded by blood stains in which there are particles thought to be powder marks.

If they prove to be powder marks
there would be little doubt that Rawn killed himself.

The White private detectives announced yesterday they expected to make an important arrest today, but no one so far has been taken into custody.

TURN OVER TIME.

When Nature Hints About the Food. When there's no relish to any food and all one eats doesn't seem to do any good then is the time to make a turn over in the diet, for that's Nature's way of dropping a hint that the food isn't the kind required.

"For a number of years I followed railroad work, much of it being office work of a trying nature. Most times were our busiest and eating too much and too quickly of food such as we commonly served in hotels and restaurants, these were not long in giving me dyspepsia and stomach trouble which reduced my weight from 205 to 160 pounds.

"There was little relish in any food and none of it seemed to do me any good. It seemed the more I ate the poorer I got and was always hungry before another meal, no matter how much I had eaten.

"Then I commenced a fair trial of Grape-Nuts food, and was surprised how a small saucer of it would carry me along, strong and with satisfied appetite, until the next meal, with no sensations of hunger, weakness or distress as before.

"I have been following this diet now for several months and my improvement has been so great all the others in my family have taken up the use of Grape-Nuts with complete satisfaction and much improvement in health and brain power.

"American people undoubtedly eat hurriedly, have lots of worry, thus hindering digestion and therefore need a food that is palatable and concentrated in nutriment.

Funeral Was Held Monday From His Parents Home in Footville, Many Friends Attending.

Footville, July 21.—The funeral of the only and much beloved son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Cory, Lynn, was held Monday at the home and was largely attended by sympathetic friends. He had been raised from infancy in the locality and by a gentle disposition and sunny temperament he had endeared himself to all and the closing of his life at the early age of 22 years has cast a gloom over the entire neighborhood. The loss experienced by all was intensified by the presence of so many that came to tender their LYNN CORY, LATE OF FOOTVILLE last tokens of respect. Lynn Cory was born on the old Cory homestead in the town of Center on the fifth day of Sept. 1877. He graduated from the common school in Center and after four years of high school in the city of Janesville, he received his diploma finishing his education by a course in Janesville Business College. His choice of the undertaking business as his future profession, necessitated his removal to Chicago where he studied the profession, passed the examination and established himself for seemingly a prosperous future. But he had the misfortune to contract a cold which settled in his lungs. It became necessary for him to return to his old home where after having received all the attention and medical aid available he passed away peacefully on Saturday evening at 6 o'clock. The services, both at the home and grave, were conducted by the Rev. J. Rosemurgy, pastor of the M. E. church.

LOUIS CELLA.

PROMINENT HORSE MAN AND SOCIETY LEADER ARRESTED ON PERJURY CHARGE—LOUIS A. CELLA.

New York—Louis A. Cella, one of the Cella brothers of St. Louis, Chicago and New York, horsemen, theater owners, hotel proprietors, has been arrested in United States Commissioner Shields' court, in the post office building here, on a charge of perjury.

Cella, it is alleged, swore falsely in proceedings before Commissioner Shields brought by the government to remove him to Washington, D. C., to stand trial on the charge of conspiracy against the United States in having maintained in Jersey City, with agents in the District of Columbia, an alleged bucket shop known as the Standard Stock and Grain Exchange Dealers. Two other men who were associated with Cella are to be arrested, it is understood, on a similar charge.

Cella's arrest astounded the small army of alleged bucket shop keepers who were corralled in the raids conducted by order of the department of justice recently in this city, Philadelphia, Jersey City and Baltimore.

Howard Taylor, attorney for Cella, declared the arrest of his client on an affidavit made on "information and belief" to be most extraordinary. "It merely shows," he added, "that the government seeks the handwriting on the wall and that it will not be able to remove my client to Washington on the charges it has brought against him and it therefore has taken this remarkable proceeding. I do not believe for one moment the government can sustain its case."

A peculiar importance attaches to the words of a dying man, for then all self-consciousness drops away and the innermost feelings are laid bare; there is no further need for the concealment of what a man may be justly proud, and the ideal of a life-time, hidden away just because it was so sacred, so entirely the man's own self, is brought unreservedly to the light of day.

Object to Slaughter of Lions. According to some of the farmers of East Africa, the lion should be protected as a useful animal, notwithstanding the fact that once in a while he kills a man. The lion, they maintain, is a great destroyer of noxious herbivorous animals, such as zebras and antelopes, which are a scourge to the fields. In one district they say no fewer than 10 lions have recently been killed by hunters, and they estimate that this represents the mowing of 25,000 to 40,000 zebras and antelopes, which would otherwise have fallen a prey to the lions that have been destroyed. Of course, the hunters shoot zebras and antelopes, but this fact, they think, does not counterbalance the destruction of those animals that would have been effected by the slain lions.

Conscience Stricken Regularly. Uncle Sam has acquired a second regular contributor to the conscience fund. On the first of every third month for the past year the treasurer has received a check for $30. It always is accompanied by a brief statement that it is the return of a pension received by an embezzling man. For many years a man with a tender conscience residing at Annapolis, Md., has regularly turned into the treasury his monthly pension. The name of the man is not known outside of three or four persons. But he has been a regular contributor for many years.

Japanese Is Hardest to Learn. The Japanese language is claimed to be the hardest of all to learn. Even the Japanese find it hard, and several American army officers have found it impossible to master it. It takes the Japanese child seven years to learn the essential parts of the alphabet, and one must become familiar with 214 signs to learn this simple part of the language alone. The 214 signs serve as the English initial letters in our alphabet. To be able to read any of the higher class of Japanese newspapers one must be the master of from 2,500 to 3,000 ideographs.—Albany Journal.

"BLEACHED" FLOUR UNDER DAN.

We are to have no more super-white bread after June 1. The department of agriculture has ruled that the bleaching of flour shall cease and has allowed a reasonable time for millers to dispose of the bleached flour they have on hand.

Here is a step in the right direction. So long as people attach more importance to the appearance of food than to its nutritive qualities, we can expect no great improvement in the habits of eating, which, as Dr. Haig of London, Bishop Fallows and others say, determine moral character, largely. White bread looks better on the table than brown, but only the full cereal brown, coarser bread contains all the elements of nutrition.

The object of food is not to please the eye nor even the palate, but to furnish to the body those elements which are necessary for the building of brain and brawn. The quality of mind must depend upon quality of the body, and that upon the food. There was formerly a law prohibiting the sale in London of bread within 24 hours after baking. Government can have no higher purpose than the conservation of the interests of all the people by the passage of wise laws regulating the manufacture and sale of food stuffs.

SHE HAD A REASON

"No, girls, Janet hasn't come yet," answered Anne, as she greeted her guests from the steps of the veranda. "We are going to stay out here and wait for her and feast our eyes on my new green wicker tea set, with the furnishings that I told father must go with it. We can talk over this latest freak of Janet's, while we wait."

"Whatever do you think?" demanded the girl with drooping eyes. "If anyone of us were engaged to that stunning man, we'd cling to him, through fire and flood. And to think that she deliberately broke—"

"It is dreadful of her to do it, too, for he was so devoted, and such a dear, and it wasn't her money he wanted, for he has so much of his own," declared the girl with the Dresden paragon. "It seems a case of straight and simple kidnap. I had a bit of a talk with Janet by phone yesterday, and she said, 'Yes, he's just as charming as he ever was. And I wish we could stay where we were just before he gave me that wonderful hand wrought ring. But we can't.'"

"But why?" I asked her. "Same time I'll tell you why—after I tell him," said Janet. "It's such a foolish, silly, simple sort of reason, that people will smile. Maybe the spin is what makes me hesitate. But after I tell him, I'll tell all you girls."

"I at any rate did feel that Janet was superficial," murmured the girl with drooping eyes. "To smile about such a thing and end a glorious epoch in one's life for some trivial reason is something I cannot understand. We always felt that she was a coquette. When Mr. Worthington began going with her I was sure he had found his match in sentiment, and the courtship was so short and sudden—"

"Yes, but he is a bit of a flirt; we all know that, dear," chimed in the girl in the garden hat, with a sympathetic glance at the girl with drooping eyes. "Arthur tells me that he danced through college on a path of girls' hearts. But it is really not his fault that he was born a flirt, you know."

"How could she end it, when the conquest was so complete and so engaging?" Anne was pouring tea now. "I do so want her to come. Jack said today that Sinclair Worthington—think of that name, girls!—was as much puzzled as any of us. 'He is not so hard hit,' Jack said, 'but that he can say he's puzzled.'"

"It is a riddle to him no longer," broke in a voice from the steps. "He knows now. And so shall you."

Janet smiled at the sudden silence which came when they saw her. "I've been here only a minute and didn't listen after I found what you were talking about," she assured them. "I am so glad I don't have to bring up the subject, for I am crazy to talk it over. I can't quite understand why I am not sorry, unless it is—but that comes later. I know now it was silly to get engaged when everybody had tales to tell of his conquests, but the person who should listen never does, and he is a dear—I still think that."

"What reason did you give him?" demanded the girl with drooping eyes. "Why, I just mailed him a letter last evening filled with a series of exhibits in the case."

"Exhibit A was a drawing of a lovely girl—he draws beautifully—with curly hair. Mine is straight, you know. He did that at my desk one evening when he was telling me how much I was to him."

"Exhibit B was an envelope that had been returned to me because of my address in the corner. Sinclair had addressed it to my grandfather at Smith college! I asked him to address it one evening when he begged me to write no more than a short note and then to talk to him. But he was thinking of some other girl all the time, as the address he put on grandfather's letter showed."

"Exhibit C was a bit of paper full of plinkies. He had done it that last evening when he begged me to understand him and his love for me—assured me that he wanted my every thought as he was mine. The trouble was that I believed him that evening for the first time. It was only after he had gone that I found the plinkied paper. In it I traced in very beautiful old English letters the word 'Louise.'"

"No, girls, we don't know Louise, do we?"

"So I put the proper dates on these exhibits and sent them in reply to his wild appeal to know why our engagement was ended. It is funny and you can laugh all you please, I'm not really sorry, for I have learned many things of late."

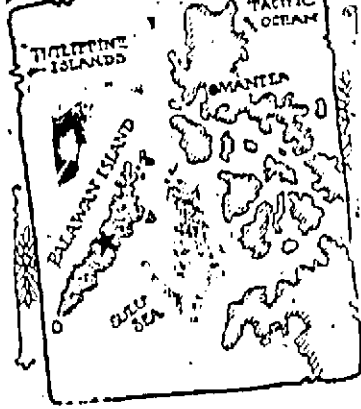

"Mother and I are going west next week to visit the Gregorys on their ranch. Billy is there for the summer, you know. He's been writing me three times a week all through my engagement. And, after all is said, Billy is splendid, don't you think?"

AMERICAN EDUCATIONAL SECRETARY DARELY ESCAPES ASSASSINATION IN THE PHILIPPINES.

Dean C. Worcester, American secretary of education for the Philippines, Map showing the island of Palawan, where he was nearly assassinated by renegade Moros.

San Francisco, Cal., July.—Though reports are still meager, more details regarding the attempted assassination have been received from the Philippines.

Dean Worcester was a member of the United States Philippine commission, sent with President Taft as chairman in 1902 to bring about satisfactory conditions out of Spain. He served as secretary of the interior from 1904 until his appointment as secretary of education. His position as secretary of education took him to every part of the most remote island district, where he systematically established schools and supervised the educational work. His remarkable success will link his name in history with the rapid advancement being made in educating the various tribes. He is a thorough student of Philippine conditions and needs.

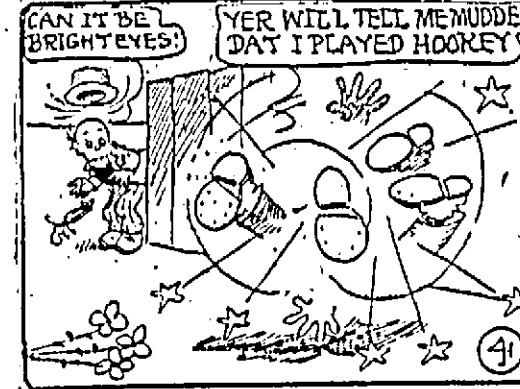

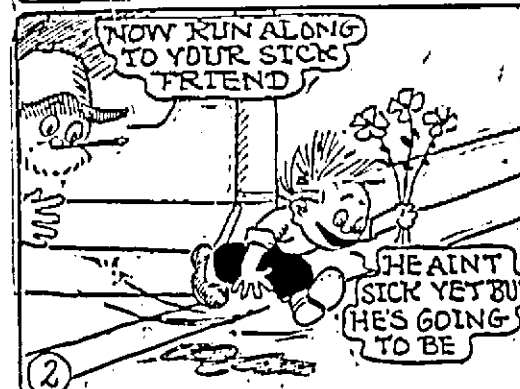

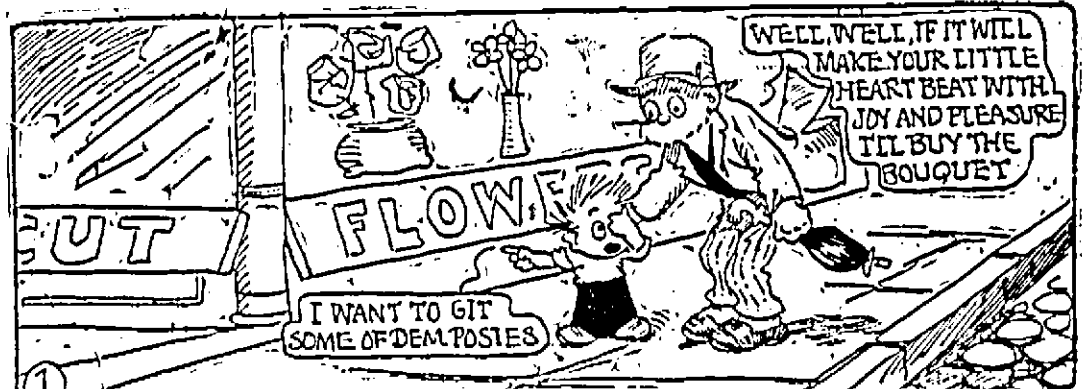

Dean Worcester's headquarters are at Manila, but much of his time is spent in the interior and distant islands. He has realized from the first that the anti-foreign feeling so prevalent among the island people would sooner or later cause him trouble. Several minor attempts have already been made on his life, and for this reason he always carried with him a small body guard. Had it not been for this alert guard he would most certainly have been assassinated. As it was a strenuous fight with the renegade Moros was necessary to have his life. Three of the Moros were killed, but none of the Worcester party was severely injured. The attempted assassination occurred on the island of Palawan.

The Ticklemouse —and his Sleepyland Adventures

By Roy Rutherford Bailey with Davy and Dorfy

In Coconut Jail

AR, far away from the nursery and the sleeping twins—away up in the top of a giant palm—a bunch of shaggy cocoanuts was swaying in the West Indian breeze.

It looked just like the other bunches of cocoanuts on the neighboring palms, except that it swayed more than the others and gave forth from time to time a sad, lonely little squeaking sob.

Across the moonlit sand a coffee colored witch came hobnobbing. She was old and bent, and carried a twist of native rope. She reached the first tree and rapped it sharply with her crooked stick.

The sob stopped. "Oh, Uncle Tick, is that you at last?" It was Willy Wishinmouse.

The coffee colored witch gave a wicked laugh that showed two long yellow teeth. "Yell away!" she called. "I'll 'Uncle Tick' you!" She passed her rope loosely around herself and the tree, knotting it behind her back. Then she grasped the rope with both hands, stuck her wrinkled bare feet against the tree trunk, and began hitching herself toward the top like a timber old grasshopper.

Reaching the top, she unstrapped a canteen from her belt, and poured the oil in it on the cocoanut that imprisoned

Willy. "Ha, ha! I've got ye now, ye thieving spirit that stole away my soul," cried the witch. "Years ago it was, 'It wasn't I!' screamed Willy. 'I'm not red—that was just my red sash you saw. You're old and half blind. I'm no red mouse. I'm no thief—let me out!'"

"You'll be a nice red-cocoanut pie in a couple of winks!" yelled the coffee colored witch. She struck a match on the horny sole of her brown foot and touched it to the dripping cluster.

A dark shadow, like a great bird, came suddenly between the witch and the tropical moon, but she never looked up till a blow from the Ticklemouse—leaping far over the rail of his airship—sent her toppling out of the palm tree.

"Quick, Davy—the fire extinguisher!" The Mouse grabbed it and emptied it over the cocoanuts. The flames died as suddenly as they had sprung up. "Willy Wishinmouse was saved!"

"Why didn't you reach yourself out, Willy?" asked the shivering twins. "I could have," explained Willy, "but the old thing had me jammed into Coconut Jail so tightly I couldn't even wink, to say nothing of standing on one leg!"

When I fell asleep thirsty. My soul crept out of my mouth in the shape of a little red mouse and went creeping over the island seeking a drink. Now my soul is gone, but I've found a red mouse at last, and he shall pay the price. Ha, ha! He shall pay!"

SCOTLAND YARD.

In police circles the term Scotland Yard means something most wonderful and mysterious. Dickens made this wonderful department of English justice famous in his novels, yet it never fails to be roundly criticized when some slip is made and its officers fail to produce results when a notable crime is committed. In commenting upon this latest slip of the supposed astute detectives of the British people an exchange has the following to say:

"In the case of Doctor Crippen, the American who murdered the wife of Scotland Yard may be well founded. The detectives had Crippen within their reach for ten days after they were in possession of the knowledge of his wife's death, and they were suspicious of Crippen; yet they permitted him to get away. They now say that they wanted to frighten him into flight for the reason that flight would amount to a confession of his guilt. A wonderful stratagem, indeed, and altogether too successful!"

WISCONSIN'S ADVANTAGES.

"Boost Wisconsin" appears to be the motto of the Milwaukee Evening Wisconsin. On the unquestionable advantages of the state it has the following to say:

"There is something in the tone of Immigration Commissioner Campbell's references to claims made for fruit farming and vegetable growing in certain well advertised western states and in Florida that is unnecessarily harsh and may have the effect of provoking retorts in kind. Yet it is true that Wisconsin presents horticultural and other opportunities to the farmer which will reward him with large returns in produce, while Wisconsin returns no possession advantages in the way of nearby markets and facilities of transportation at reasonable rates that are of high importance in computing the outlook for pecuniary profit.

"All things considered, the average capable, industrious agriculturalist in Wisconsin can do better by staying in Wisconsin than by going away. Many have been lured elsewhere who have come back. Many who have investigated conditions in irrigated regions widely advertised have discovered drawbacks of different kinds regarding which land dealers' prospectuses naturally contain no note.

"Against the fairy stories of promoters of new farming regions it is always has been and always will be wise to be on guard. But it is possible to inculcate all this in a parliamentary, solemn fashion that will be quite as effective as any with intending settlers and that will not arouse resentful antagonism in the breasts of people interested in rival regions bidding for settlement."

THAT LETTER "B".

Official dispatches announce that on the out blades of the Pennsylvania farmers the letter "B" has been distinctly seen in many fields. Strange to say it has been reported that a similar letter has been found on the out blades in Missouri. However, the strangest part of the whole affair is that in both cases the discoverers were democrats. In both cases their enthusiasm was so great that they formally announced it meant that Bryan was to be the successful presidential candidate in 1912.

However, if the letter "B" is really outlined on the out blades of Missouri and Pennsylvania, the phenomenon must be general, in which case its appearance in Kansas will be understood to mean that Senator Bristow will put the standpatters on the tin. In Indiana, naturally, it will mean that Beveridge will have a walkover against Kern. In the city of Washington it may be interpreted to mean that Clifford Pinchot will triumph over Secretary Ballinger, but in the state of Washington it is more likely to be accepted as a sure sign that Ballinger will be victorious over Pinchot.

Nor will its application be limited altogether to things political. It is the oldest thing in the world to see how farmers in northwestern New York will regard it as an invitation to bring their products for exchange to Booming, Blooming, Beautiful Buffalo, how the farmers of Maryland shall take it to mean brilliant, buoyant, bonnie Baltimore, and how the farmers of all New England shall regard it as an unmistakable token of a "Bigger, Better, Buxier Boston."

"B" stands for so many things, such as bonns, bananas, bugs, beef, balloons, bonds and Beverly, that the farmer who is inclined to be speculative rather than superstitious will have a good time, until harvest begins, running over the list. When harvest does begin, of course, the "B" on the out blade will stand for business, bustle and a bull market.

Candidates for governor on all the factional tickets are busy with their tours of the state. Perhaps none of them are revelling the reception that is being accorded E. T. Fairchild, who is the only open and above board Taft republican candidate. Mr. Fairchild visited in Janesville today and his reception was most pleasing to his many friends who are hopeful for his victory at the polls in the September primaries.

Speaker Cannon may have been considered down and out by the insurgents in congress, but he made a tour of Kansas, the home of insurgency, this past week, that surprised lots of people who thought that their congressmen had told the truth about the old gentleman. Cannon can still hold his own with the best of them.

Thus far the first congressional campaign has been devoid of the usual fireworks that accompany a hotly contested nomination contest. However, Mr. Ingalls is letting no grass grow under his feet and the month of August still remains for the final touches of the campaign.

They are having a great time over the third assembly district member of the legislature. There seems to be no question but that the contest is going to be a warm one and most interesting to the outsiders who are watching the contest from on top of the fence.

Down in Illinois they are still debating over the question of the candidates whom they want to elect for the legislature. They have a list of undesirable and the papers who brought about the Lorrimer exposure mean to fight the undesirables bitterly.

It would not be Chicago unless there was some scandal to fill the front pages. A murder, attempted murder, and a suicide, all within a week, however, is rushing matters a trifle, even to the crime-hardened Chicago resident.

"You will succeed in Janesville" is a slogan that will bear watching and also bear repeating at all times. It rings true and is true, so put your shoulder to the wheel and boost.

PRESS COMMENT.

Finish One First.
Will the newspapers which advocated a same Fourth of July please come forward now and champion a dimensionless Thanksgiving and a presentless Christmas?—Green Day Gazette.

Thinning Ranks.
Judging from the picture of the First district delegation at the state democratic convention in Milwaukee, as published in a city paper, most of the unaffiliated have deserted.—Beloit Free Press.

Startling, Yes—But True?
Senator Cummins of Iowa is coming to Wisconsin to take the stump for La Follette. The voters of the Badger state are certain to hear some startling truths on governmental subjects next fall.—Oshkosh Northwestern.

The Measurized Minority.
An interesting statement made by one of the delegates to the recent democratic convention was that La Follette received 45,000 democratic votes the last time he needed them. It was made plain in the convention that nothing of this kind must occur again if the democrats are to retain their party designation on the official ballot in November. It would be interesting to know what stand the Milwaukee Journal takes upon the ethical question of whether it is better for a democrat to vote in the primaries for his own party's candidate who stand no chance of being elected, or for its peerless Rob and let the party designation go to Chandler.—Appleton Post.

They "Ate Crow."

The papers that are ready to call E. L. Phillips a "railroad lobbyist" and "a corporation tool" are reminded by a writer in the Oshkosh Northwestern, that Mr. Phillips over $10,000 judgment, interest, etc., about a year ago, because Ray Stannard Baker, postmaster at Mukwonago, in an article on Wisconsin politics called Mr. Phillips a railroad lobbyist and alluded disrespectfully to his connection with corporations. The Milwaukee Free Press, which had republished Baker's article, saved itself from a similar libel suit by making a full retraction. Those who know Mr. Phillips know him merely as president of the Union Refrigerator Transit company, which is an independent company in which he is the controlling force, personally and financially. The company's record as well as that of Mr. Phillips, will undoubtedly stand close investigation or McClure's would have contested its case beyond the lower court. Mr. Phillips' views are far from those of those who oppose him politically but they will make out a poor case attacking him personally.—Madison Democrat.

Uncle Walt THE POET PHILOSOPHER BY WALT MASON. (Copyright, 1909, by George Mathew Adams.)

I'm tired of moving pictures, and other glaring shows; I'm tired of hearing lectures delivered through the nose.

STAYING AT HOME, I'm tired of stately strikers who for an office yell, and weary of the speakers who blind me with a spell. A book by Doyle or Dante spread out upon my knee, and my old one-horse shanty good enough for me.

I used to spend the gloaming and sometimes half the night, in idle, lachrymose railing, in search of cheap delight; I liked the noise and clamor, the greetings and the stunts, the rushing and the clamor of city thoroughfares; but now I'm old and wiser, I like my vine and tree; my shaft and Jane Elizer are good enough for me. I love my peacocks' cottage; I love each brick and board; for such a mess of pottage as balls and streets afford, I surely would not trade it at any man's behest; my brain and I have made it the place we love the best. The streets are always crawling with packed humanity; "come home," Elizer's calling—that's good enough for me!

Heart to Heart Talks. By EDWIN A. NYE.

A SERMONET.

This was Haggar's prayer: "Give me neither poverty nor riches."

It was a wise petition. If you are in the depths of poverty, life can offer but little to you. The world leads to month existence over-whelms the best and highest that is in you and prevents your being what you want to be or ought to be.

Similarly, if you are very rich the abundance overwhelms the highest and best that is in you and prevents your being what you want or ought to be.

You agree as to the first and deny the second? Note this: If you are rich you must always be alert against the machinations of the shrewd, else the shrewd will surely get a part of your abundant surplus. To feel that men would rob you is to shut up the bowels of your mercy and put you out of touch. Which is not conducive to happiness.

It is true that—

If you are rich you will hesitate to trust a proffered friendship for fear the proffer may be a mask with a design behind it. You will feel that what is done for you is done for your money's sake and not for your sake.

Whereas—

If you are of the common herd your friends are disinterested friends. If you are sick or your family meets with misfortune these friends will be friends indeed. Common folk look after one another in the times of suffering and of stress.

Moreover—

If you are rich your wealth exposes you to every sort of disagreeable notoriety. When your forty-second cousin makes a scandal he is exploited in the black headlines of the newspapers as "the near relative of the rich Mr. —."

On the slightest provocation your family history is exploited for the detection of the multitude.

Reckless—

Your labors to retain your wealth are as world as those of the poor mortal who grabs at mere existence. There is nothing joyous and nothing character making in your labors.

On the other hand—

Work for a living is a blessing in disguise. It is a purgator for sorrow and makes for character. And, though sometimes it may seem to be irksome and grievous, yet there is in it a joy that comes in no other way.

COVERING THE TERRITORY

Good Impression With Limited Number of Readers Better Than Poor One With Large Class.

There is an old saying, "A man should not shoot at a pond to hit a duck." The chief trouble with many advertising campaigns is that they try to cover too much territory with their advertising and to spread the money, which they have to spend, so thin that the advertising is pitifully threadbare. They use so small space that they do not make a favorable impression with those who do see their advertisements. It is much better to make the right impression with fewer people than to succeed in reaching ten times the number of readers and make a poor impression with all of them. The number of people that you succeed in convincing is the final test of the success of your advertising, after all.

When you are selling a customer you have a way of telling things about your goods, the points of superiority, how they are made or why they have style; you tell it to him with a certain pride and enthusiasm which, if you can only transfer to ink and paper, would be the best kind of advertising copy. Some men, the moment they take their pen in hand, begin to think that they are worthy successors of John Milton or Herbert Spencer, Milton and Spencer are much talked about in works on literature and science, but are not popular authors. Horace Greeley and Charles A. Dana are better models, because they expressed themselves in English than can be comprehended by the ordinary newspaper reader.

First, make it clear in your own mind what impression you wish to leave on the minds of those who read your advertisements, and then set about to accomplish this purpose by what you say and how you say it.

If your funds are limited, confine your advertising to fewer publications and use a reasonable amount of space in those, rather than a larger number of papers and insignificant advertising is judged somewhat by the amount of space you use, do not use more space than you can reasonably afford. Nevertheless, it is not a correct conclusion to do no advertising at all, because you cannot afford to use large space. If your means are small, start in with a modest space.

Change your advertising copy each time, but follow the same general style. By adopting a certain style and using the same style continuously, each advertisement, if only given a glance, will bring you to the mind of the reader, and what was said in the last advertisement, which they read. Do not try to tell your whole story in one advertisement. Bring out one point, clearly, in one piece of copy and another point in the next advertisement, relying on the whole series to carry home your complete argument.

If possible, have your advertisement illustrated. The illustrations should be appropriate. They should be designed to convey some idea or make some particular impression on the reader. The advantage of using an illustration is that the eye grasps the idea back of it, quicker than it does your type story. Of course, this presumes that there is an idea back of the illustration.

If your advertising appropriation is big enough, put it in the hands of some good advertising man and hold him responsible for results. You cannot, however, rely on an advertising manager to do his best possible work for you, unless you co-operate with him in studying out a plan of campaign, which best suits your requirements. He can give you a great deal of valuable service and assistance, but you must also give them material with which to work.

A Chicago woman is held to the federal grand jury for not talking. This is not fiction. However, a census enumerator makes the complaint.

Beliefs About Lightning.

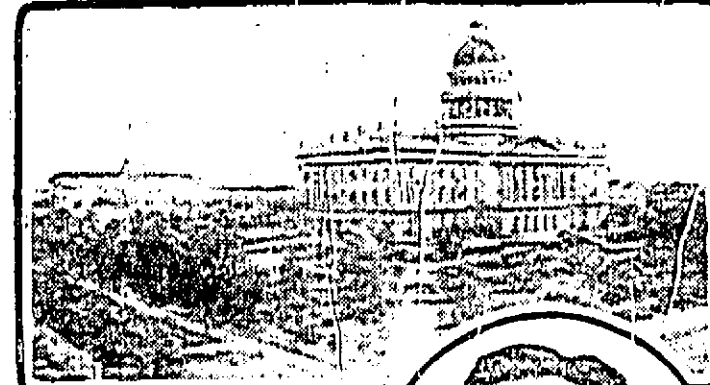

There is a popular tradition that lightning will not kill any one who is asleep. According to one school, the splinters of a tree struck by lightning are an infallible specific for the toothache. An amusing superstition used to be cherished by the boys of a Yorkshire (Eng.) village, who believed that if they mentioned the lightning immediately after a flash the seat of their trousers would be torn out. No boy could be induced to make the experiment.

DENTISTRY THAT FITS

Yesterday a man from Evansville came in for a new set of teeth, saying that I had made his wife's teeth over fifteen years ago.

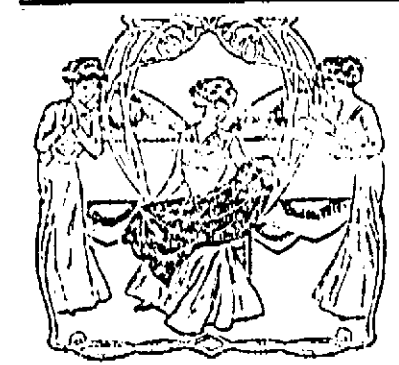

And they had been so satisfactory that he did not wish to take any chances on other Dentists.

That's the way it goes if I do your work.

Time shows my work to be the best. These qualities together with reasonable prices appeal to thinking people.

Texas Elberta Peaches

They instantly recognized the superior canning qualities of these excellent peaches and have kept us on the jump supplying their grocers. We have been distributing a carload every day for two weeks, but the demand seems to increase and today we distributed two carloads, while tomorrow we will distribute three carloads. Every grocer in town will have some of them—last lot.

This last lot is by far the best we have sent out yet. They are absolutely perfect, well ripened, yet in that fine firm condition so necessary to good canning. And flavor—they are a positive delight to the taste.

You can get them in baskets, half-bushels and bushels. Buy from your grocer. Prices will be higher after today. We wholesale only.

CHARLES M'KEEVER,
NEGRO HIGHWAYMAN,
NOW UNDER ARREST

Captured Last Night by Chicago Police and Refused to Come to Janesville Unless Extradited.

Under arrest, but defiant, Charles McKeever, the negro accused of robbing and kidnapping, was held by the Chicago police and it was thought probable for a time that extradition papers would be necessary before he could be brought to this city to face the charge of robbery by violence which he was preferred against him.

At first McKeever announced he would fight extradition and would not leave Chicago without a warrant signed by the Governors of both states. After visiting several police stations, being put through the degree course as it was, Chief Appleby who knows the ropes of the Chicago police department, succeeded in persuading the prisoner to sign a waiver and agree to return to Janesville for trial.

As soon as McKeever signed the papers, plans were made to bring him back on the train reaching here at six twenty-five this evening and he will doubtless be arraigned in court tomorrow morning. Whether he will plead guilty or not remains to be seen but it has been clever work to catch him so quickly as he had been and the police deserve considerable credit for their work.

McKeever acted in accordance with the theory of the local police and returned to his haunts in Chicago where he was arrested last night. Chief Appleby was notified of the capture early this morning and left immediately to bring the negro back to Janesville. Shortly after his departure however, a telegram was received from Steven B. Wood, captain of the detective bureau, which stated that McKeever was being held but refused to leave Illinois unless extradited.

Had the negro proved obdurate and persisted in his determination to resist all the trouble he could, it would have been necessary for the chief to proceed to Madison, secure the proper papers, then go to Springfield, for the governors signature and return to Chicago for his prisoner. This would have required some time even under the most favorable conditions and McKeever would not have been the inside of the local jail until Friday or Saturday.

A BIT OF HISTORY.

More than 25 years ago a small flour mill was started in the heart of the best wheat growing country in the world. The miller was also in his way and figured that to make good flour at a low cost, you must grow the best wheat grown, and make your flour on the ground. He made flour and because it was good he named it Jersey Lily, and in Janesville, this flour has been in big demand for 25 years or more. Now the miller is sending a lady to Janesville, equipped with hundreds of 2-lb. sacks of Jersey Lily which is being given free to the ladies, in order that they may try this flour. Orders are taken by any grocer, and if the flour is not entirely satisfactory they return the money. The price now is $1.50 per sack. Jersey Lily is the highest grade patent flour sold at the popular price.

Prospects for a Light-weight Battle in September Good.

(By Special Correspondent.)

With the heavyweight horizon effectively cleared there is once again room for breath for fighters in other divisions of endeavor and among these the lightweights spring prominently into view again.

Interest now is focused upon young Ad Wolgast, the Michigan Wildcat, and fight followers are wondering who will try to swipe the crown which he lifted so neatly off the classic brow of Oscar Matthew Battling Nelson. Two of the candidates being groomed for this rather tremendous task are Owen Moran, the fifty little English light-weight, and Packer McFarland of Chicago. The latter has just concluded a tour in England which was a triumph for his prowess. He toppled English aspirants and indubitably and clearly bested Freddie Welsh, the English champion.

Wolgast has given it out flatly that McFarland must make 133 pounds ringside if he wishes a shot at the title. Many claim McFarland cannot do this. If he can there should be a battle royal for McFarland is clever and game and has never been made to look like a second rater by anybody.

Owen Moran out on the coast is clamoring for a chance against Wolgast and promoters with an ear of the public's wants are trying to match the Englishman with the young Michiganander.

CONSUL TRIMMER NOW IN DANGER

U. S. REPRESENTATIVE AT CAPE GRACIAS DIOS THREATENED WITH DEATH.

CRUISER TACOMA TO SCENE

State Department at Washington is Informed Lives of Americans and Other Foreigners in Nicaraguan Town Are Menaced.

Washington, July 21.—The cruiser Tacoma, with fifty marines and her full complement of bluejackets on board, has been dispatched to Cape Gracias Dios, Nicaragua, with orders to land men under arms for the protection of the life of Consul Edwin W. Trimmer, United States consul at that point, who has been threatened with assassination, and of American property there at all costs.

Within 24 hours the marines of the Tacoma will occupy Cape Gracias Dios.

Americans Are in Danger.

This information was received in a telegram at the state department from Consul Moffat at Bluefields, Nicaragua. Consul Moffat wired that Americans and other foreigners at that place were in danger, and that it was feared the American consul there would be assassinated.

Following a conference between Consul Moffat and Commander Mines of the cruiser Dubuque, who commands the naval forces in Nicaraguan waters, it was thought best to dispatch the Tacoma with all possible haste to the scene of the disturbance.

Taft is Arraigned.

The anti-American feeling in certain sections of Nicaragua has been augmented by the publication in a Madrid newspaper in Managua, of an arraignment of President Taft. The article goes on to state that President Taft should inform President Madriz and the other Yankies that for every shot hurled against us a head of one of their countrymen shall roll on the ground.

NEMO BULLETIN

Thousands of slender women now wear Nemo Self-Reducing Corsets. Why?

Because Fashion tells all women to be slender—to flatten hips, back and upper limbs to the utmost. This can't be done without danger, unless the abdominal organs are firmly held in place; and no corset but the Nemo gives the slightest abdominal support.

That is why thousands of slender women are wearing the new Nemo Self-Reducing Corset No. 405. The broad Relief Bands, which support the abdomen from underneath, permit extreme reduction with perfect safety and comfort, and will make a medium and slight figure even more fashionably slender.

There's a Nemo model for every figure—stout, slender, medium.

BROWN BROS. On the Bridge

In the Development of Advertising

Most progressive merchants recognize three stages in its construction.

Competitive advertising, that which meets the efforts made by rival stores in the same line.

Educational advertising where competition exists, that which educates the public to the policies of the stores, educates the public as to the service, the class of goods, etc.

And Educational advertising where no competition exists, that which suggests certain needs which do not now exist and then educates the public to the use thereof.

The third stage has great possibilities in the introduction of new things as it is an actual creative force when intelligently executed.

Educational advertising where competition exists however of greater importance in general merchandising because it establishes a character and prestige which when once firmly established remains for a generation. Examples of stores that have successfully employed this style of advertising are many and the class of business handled by such stores is the very best. One remarkable fact stands out which every earnest investigator cannot help but see and that is; in every city the best store to trade not only employs educational advertising very extensively but employs it more extensively than any of its competitors. It is a truism that the biggest store in every city is the biggest user of newspaper advertising and that its enviable position has been secured through its publicity.

The biggest store is the biggest advertiser. The biggest advertiser is the biggest store.

KILL THE GERMS

That's the Only Way to Cure Dandruff, and Parisian Sago is the Only Killer

"Parisian Sago," said a New York barber, "will kill the destructive and persistent germs of dandruff, and abolish the disease. There may be other remedies that will do the same, but I never heard of one."

And just read what one of the foremost barbers of Springfield, Mass., says of Parisian Sago:

"Dear Sir, I used your Parisian Sago and found it better than any other. It is the best hair restorer I ever used, and I have used them all. I find it a great dandruff remover also. You should get it in to all the barber shops, and get the barbers to use it, as it is great."

Use A. Stillz, 73 1/2 Main Street, Springfield, Mass.

Parisian Sago snags into the scalp, and when it reaches the roots of the hair it not only kills every dandruff germ, but it supplies the hair with just the right kind of nourishment to put vigor and strength into it and make it grow.

Parisian Sago is guaranteed by People's Drug Co. to stop falling hair; to cure dandruff; to keep hair from fading; to stop itching of the scalp, or money back. Price 50 cents a large bottle at The People's Drug Co., or by express, charges prepaid, from the American makers, (Graham, McKittrick, Buffalo, N. Y.) The girl with the Auburn hair is on every bottle.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

IF A MAN drew out the money he had been putting into the bank for his child's bringing up and education, and lavished it in buying all sorts of unnecessary things for that child in its babyhood, you would hardly be inspired to look upon that man as an exceptionally self-sacrificing and unselfish father, would you?

On the contrary, you would probably consider him decidedly selfish. You would be wondering of his provision for his child's future, wouldn't you? Yes, what you are thinking is quite true—that is all nonsense, and no father would think of doing such a thing.

But mothers do. Lots of them. No, I don't mean literally. How then?

Well, let me explain by telling you the way one woman I know did it.

Through the hot summer months this mother's baby—like a good many other mothers' babies—was not well; not sick, just bothered with the heat and rather different from his usual happy self.

Baby's mother, always of the passionately devoted kind, the kind who regard it as a disgrace to allow anyone else to do anything for their offspring, with baby ailing became ten times as devoted.

"You can't keep it up," warned the family doctor. "You aren't strong. You are wasting strength that you may need very badly some day."

"Let me take care of him occasionally while you get a bit of rest," pleaded baby's grandmother.

"I'd rather see to him myself. I just can't bear to have anyone else touch him when he feels this way," protested baby's mother.

And so she did. And in the fall, having overdrawn her account at the bank of strength, baby's mother gave out completely.

The entire care of the baby had to pass into the hands of well-paid but careless help. Baby fell ill—in earnest this time—and the mother who had recklessly squandered herself in times of plenty was absolutely poverty stricken of strength in this time of need.

No, the baby didn't die. God was good. But wouldn't it have been partly the fault of that mother's reckless and short-sighted devotion if he had?

There is undoubtedly such a thing as selfish devotion—selfish in its short-sightedness and recklessness. "I would rather," is not always the best criticism even of self sacrifice and devotion.

"Will it be the best in the end?" is a safer one. There is a self-economy as well as a financial economy and it's just as important a thrift to acquire. Or, rather, infinitely more so.

HINTS FOR THE HOME

The fireless cooker is still increasing in its possibilities. In canning fruits that require long cooking it will be found that the flavor and shape are better preserved by making the cooker do the long part and then boiling down the syrup over the fire.

In making jelly this is particularly useful. Use as little water as possible and bring the fruit to a boil and put into the cooker (all very tender. This will take from four to ten hours. Quinces and grapes taking the longest time. The juices are drained and squeezed from them in the usual way and the ordinary process is then adopted.

All fruits for canning should be of the finest and finest flavor. The fruit that has begun to decay or which is not as perfect, may be cut up for jams but should not be used for jellies, as the flavor should in that case be very delicate.

The most delicately flavored fruits are especially recommended for cooking in the fireless cooker, as the long steaming process in ordinary use cooking will either destroy the flavor or harden the fruit.

When canning, a good substitute for an ice box is made for keeping milk from souring by packing it in coarse salt which has been slightly dampened. Do not wet too much or it will be sticky and hard to dry out for future use. Two stone were jars.

Fads and Fashions

New York, July 21.—The tailored silk costume is considered almost a necessity by the summer girl of today, and it does all many a want. This season it is more generally worn than ever before and takes many forms, ranging from severity in satin, moire, cachemire de sole, etc., to pliant combinations of chiffon, organza, silk voile or other sheer material with silk. These combination costumes are in the form of frocks and coats and are suitable for innumerable occasions, since the tailored coat and skirt bottom to match make the costume suitable for street or train, and yet the softer bodice and upper skirt insure the daintiness and proper look for luncheon, tea or other daytime functions, in the city or country.

With the coat and skirt costume of silk a sheer blouse in the same color would be ordered, but there are times when this blouse may be saved by wearing a comfortable separate blouse of lingerie material. The softest and finest of satins are used for the silk costumes, and cachemire de sole is immensely popular for the purpose, though once upon a time women would have considered such materials too light and soft for tailoring.

Cachemire de sole has, by the way, many faces now and it is difficult to remember the names of the various materials. There is a "cachemire de sole raye," which is a beautiful material, one tone, indescribably light, supple and lustrous and woven with a very fine cord running lengthwise of the material. A satin cachemire de sole is another favorite, combining the exquisite texture implied in its name with a lustrous satin finish. There are two-tone cachemires de sole, too, in which a plain ground is crossed by a fine stripe, and some remarkably chic French costumes are made up of such striped silks.

No striped is more practical and serviceable, and since this summer the tailored is modish as well as practical for general afternoon wear. A little less ordinary is one of the very soft lustrous silks in large checks which may be had in a great variety. Not so serviceable but delightful for afternoon purposes are the Pekin mousselines and chiffons, and the plain tone sheer stuffs such as chiffon, tulle and nylon.

For "evening" dressed or preferably may be used on alternate days. To keep butter cool, invert a stone flower pot over it after it has been wrapped in a damp cloth, first soaking the flower pot in cold water. The porous pot will keep the butter firm on even very hot days.

One of the comforts which should be carried on long journeys is the large water wings which children use for floating. Blown up and inserted in a cool linen slip they are much more comfortable than a pillow, and yet take up but very little room.

In the travelling case should always be a small bottle of aromatic lavender and a small bottle of camphor for the car headache which so often comes upon one suddenly. In hot weather, some soft cloths should also be carried which may be thrown away after they have served as compresses or for wash rags. Avoid a sponge in warm weather. They are so prone to grow sour and very difficult to restore to a sanitary condition. If you are addicted to the use of the sponge, however, have a jar of strong soda water on your commode and drop the sponge in it when it grows sour. Of course the soda water must be renewed after each time it is used.

Arise early and get your hardest work finished before the day grows too warm. Then do not think it is lazy to take a rest and even a nap in the middle of the day.

pear in every place where an excuse can be found for them. Dresses and blouses are faced down the left side with soft ribbons instead of with hooks or buttons. The sides of unders frequently show being connections, while middy blouses are slashed in the front at the outer edge of the sleeves, also the side seams at lower edge. Even yokes display narrow threadings of ribbon, ending at the lower edge in a bow, casual fashion.

Not for many years has there been such interest displayed in faces and necks of every description. The pattern rules of lace are in great variety and of many different prices, while never were there such exquisite imitations at comparatively small cost. As may readily be credited, there are most elaborate lace gowns, but some are charmingly simple. The model that can be fashioned of one wide or two medium-width flounces is invariably becoming. The flounce, only a small amount, is gathered into the belt. The waist is like a belted jacket, but if preferred there need not be the skirts to the jacket—just the waist, with its draped flounce crossed and fastened at the left side, with bow of silk or satin or spray of artificial flowers. A wide folded giraffe of tulle comes high on the water under the flounce and is drawn tight around the figure, making it slender. A band of silk or satin to match the belt flounces the skirt at the foot and makes the lace hang better. This model can be copied in black or white lace or net and be made over a colored lining.

Ribbons are used extensively this season for the trimming of dresses and waists as well as for the trimming of hats. Ribbons are used successfully as a tunic edge for the marquisette and chiffon drapery of the figured front and gown, and it is the color touch on many a pretty garden party frock.

Always successful as summer neckties are the medium widths of soft ribbon, whether tied in a bow or knotted into a four-in-hand. Freshness recommends them and variety almost compels them. Each summer frock or hat demands a different color. Color enters largely into the successful use of ribbon, and not alone are the brightest tones called into requisition in the furnishing of hat and gown. The French are fond of a certain deep purple ribbon on black hats, and the combination is not far from ravishing. Black ribbon on the dark blue hat or on the gray hat is as successful as certain combinations of black ribbon with burnt straw and with even ruffia fabric. Changeable ribbons are extremely popular and are exploiting them a great deal for trimming of two-colored straws.

A novelty in the binding of hats is to take a ribbon about three inches wide, gather at each edge, and draw up to fit over the brim edge as wide on the lower as on the upper side. FLORENCE FAIRBANKS.

THE WARNING NOTE.

By MARY HESSELL.

There is no nature so degraded that has not at some time felt the warning of the thing we call conscience for lack of a better name. Even the drunkard, whose parents were drunkards before him, has had—once upon a time—the divine warning.

It is like a fine silver astral bell—this warning note which strikes the being. Sometimes so fine and thin is the vibration that our world-consumed ears hardly know it has rung.

The girl who starts in the feeling and knowing that within herself is the true director of good and evil, will seldom be led astray.

When a thing is offensive to the higher, finer self that dwells within, then it is wrong. The feeling that perhaps the contemplated act is not right is the true warning, even when the girl argues that other girls do thus and so have "such a good time."

One young girl looked reproachfully at the mother and said: "I wish you had not given me such a sense of honor! All the other girls write notes and whisper and have so much fun, and I feel so guilty and mean, if I do such things that I don't enjoy them. And then they have great fun with the boys! Of course it is silly and they are little idiots and all that, but they are little idiots and all that—but you see I do and so I don't care if a bit—and I wish I did!"

Dear little child, standing with wonder while eyes at the gates of life! She is sorry that within her heart is the only safeguard that a mother can give a child—a true sense of right and wrong.

A conscience gets hardened by disregarding the warning thrill. Too many girls smother the thrill, fine ring and all their lives so untrained and wounded within even though the exterior be very fair and attractive.

Like the bell buoy of the ocean, the conscience points the way to safety and warns the traveller from off the shoals and rocks of life.

It is God-given, and all that is asked is that we heed the warning. The thing that makes a girl blush is wrong. The words that cause her to shame—even though it be slight—is wrong. The deed that she is ashamed to own is not right. The action that makes her feel degraded is the action should avoid.

Life is so full of pitfalls for girls. The way is so hard. No one credits them with the same feelings and temptations as late to the lot of the boy—and yet perhaps they have as many of a different kind. And they have less chance of regaining their lost place in the world if they take a misstep. That is a law of man. God did not make it. But since we live in a world under man-made conditions, then our lives must be governed thereby.

Listen, then, to the little warning

note that rings so fine and clear in the childish heart. Keep your ears attuned, dear little girl, for life is hard at best—and life without noble purpose is not worth the living.

HACKETT'S DIVORCED WIFE MAY

WED RICH BUSINESS MAN.

Chicago, Ill.—Current report among the friends of Mary Mannering connects to connect her name with that of Frederick W. Wadsworth and while no announcement of their engagement has been made, they would not be surprised to learn of it at any moment. When the former wife of James K. Hackett was asked about it her statement was: "My friends are a little premature."

Detroit, Mich.—Frederick W. Wadsworth, who is reported to be engaged to Mary Mannering, is a millionaire business man of this city. His wife has just received a divorce and the custody of their daughter.

BLACK AND WHITE TOILETTE.

The charm of that ever beautiful combination, black and white, is shown in a stunning gown of black crepe georgette, whose skirt is gracefully draped and held with a handsome jet ornament as shown by sketch. On the bodice jet possumen-terle and buttons are used in connection with silver dotted black net. Yoke and high stock are of ivory white point de Venise lace.

For wear with this charming toilette is a hat of white ermine, closely covered with tucked black chiffon de sole. Clustering plumes of black ostrich feathers droop over brim, which turns up on one side with a sweeping curve, and a band of black velvet encircles the crown.

The finishing touch is a shoulder scarf of white chiffon, bordered with a ruche of black marabout.

At Least, Do Something.

By all means begin your toilet. Even if the doctor does not give you a year, even if he hesitates about a month, make one brave push and see what can be accomplished in a week.—Stevenson.

Indeterminate Sentence in Joliet for Theft is Annulled.

Milwaukee, July 21.—Mrs. Evelyn Romadka, divorced wife of Charles T. Romadka, a wealthy Milwaukee trunk manufacturer, has been pardoned by the Illinois authorities.

The woman was paroled from Joliet penitentiary eight months ago to Mand Ballington Booth, head of the "Volunteers of America." Her present address is unknown to her former friends. She has disappeared completely from the limelight.

Notice of Mrs. Romadka's pardon was mailed to Mrs. Booth by Warden Murphy of the Joliet prison. It was four years ago that Mrs. Romadka was given an indeterminate sentence of one to fifteen years after she had pleaded guilty in Chicago to sensational charges of theft. At that time it was said that she was mentally unsound.

The fight for her liberty has been in charge of Attorney Maurice McKenna of Fond du Lac, Wis.

BUFFALO BILL TO RETIRE.

Event Celebrated by Double Exhibition—The Wild West and Far East

—Men of Many Climes—A Wide

World Horse Show.

While announcing that the present tour will be his farewell to each city visited, Col. W. F. Cody, and his conductor, Pawnee Bill, intend to present a superlative entertainment by presenting people from many races and climes and a congress of horses and harnesses, such as has never been seen in any single city. This is made possible by the combination of the two bills' separate organizations, known as the Wild West and Far East. The roster will include the American Indian, U. S. Cavalry and Artillery, Russian Cossacks, Bedouin Arabs, Military of All Nations, Mexicans, American Cowboys, Western Ranch Girls, Company of Infantry, Devil's Zouaves, Scouts, Frontiersmen, and Marksmen, led by Johnny Baker and Col. Cody. In the Far East will be representatives from different Malay people, Australian Hindu Fakirs, Derwishes, Soudanese, Ceylonese, Persians, Cingales, Dahomians, Hawaiians, Philipinos, with Camels, Dromedaries and Elephants to lend color and atmosphere to the Oriental pageant. The elephants, the camels, the wild ones, and besides their other exhibitions of intelligence actually play on musical instruments in an effective manner. Besides the wild bucking horse of the prairie, a striking feature will be the introduction of remarkably trained horses, reared in arid lands as premises of their kind, to complete a wide world horse show, such as has never before been presented in one arena. This will give a grand lesson in every style possible in the art of equestrianism. Ray Thompson's mixed blood race horses, led by the famous "Joe Bailey," will be included. In addition there will be Rhoda Royal's troupe of twenty famous blue ribbon high school thoroughbreds, who will accomplish many feats and graceful postures only acquired and executed through their rare intelligence. These horses represent the Kentucky prizewinning blue grass prize. Thus will the spectator witness in one session of two hours the European and American schools of equestrianism, the dabbled products of riding academy, the society tournament, the professional arena, as well as the noted bucking bronchos of the plains. The various scenes and incidents illustrated on the billboards and in the advertisements will be faithfully executed, and a remarkable program will make celebrated the farewell of the old scout, Buffalo Bill.

A BOY'S HOLIDAYS

The ardent controversy which has been waged in England and America concerning the best way to dispose of school-boys in the long summer vacation has prompted the Grand Trunk Railway System to issue a special publication giving suggestions and practical hints to parents as to what to do with the school boy during the months of July and August. The vacation camp is one of the solutions and the publication entitled, "What Shall a Boy Do With His Vacation?" thoroughly covers the ground. The Girl and the Bill

By Bannister Merwin

Orme retained his hold. "I don't like your looks, my friend," he said. "There may have been reason why you should be to me, but you will have to make things clear." He considered. After all, he must make allowance; so he said: "Come back tomorrow with evidence that you are entitled to the bill, and you shall have it." He released Senator Portol.

The little man had recovered his composure. He went back to the table and took up his hat and cane, re-rolling the handkerchief and slipping it into his pocket. Once more he was the Latin fox. He approached Orme, and his manner was deprecating.

"My most abject apologies for attacking you, sir. I was a little myself. But if you will only permit me I will bring up my friend, who is waiting below." He will, as you say, vouch for me.

"Who is he?"

"A very, very distinguished man," Orme pondered. The adventure was opening up, and he felt inclined to see it through. "Bring him," he said shortly.

When Senator Portol had disappeared Orme telephoned to the clerk. "Send me up a porter," he ordered.

The Struggle Lasted Only for a Moment.

"and have him stand just outside my door, with orders to enter if he hears any disturbance." He waited at the door till the porter appeared, then told him to remain in a certain place until he was needed, or until the visitors left.

Senator Portol remained downstairs for several minutes. Evidently he was explaining the situation to his friend. But after a time Orme heard the clang of the elevator door, and in response to the knock that quickly followed, he opened his own door. At the side of his former visitor stood a dapper foreigner. He wore a long frock coat and carried a glossy hat, and his eyes were framed by large gold spectacles.

"This is the Senator Alcraente," explained Senator Portol.

The newcomer bowed with suave dignity.

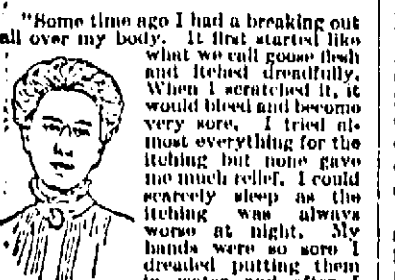

"Senator Alcraente? The name is familiar," said Orme, smiling.

Portol assumed an air. "He is the Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment 3 Weeks. Trouble All Disappeared.

"Some time ago I had a breaking out all over my body. It first started like what we call goose flesh and itched dreadfully. When I scratched it, it would bleed and become very sore. I tried almost everything for the itching but none gave me much relief. I could scarcely sleep as the itching was always worse at night. My hands were so sore I dreaded putting them in water and after I used Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and in two or three weeks the trouble all disappeared. I always found that my hands were worse with a dry scale on them after using any cheap soap but the Cuticura Soap produced such a soothing feeling on my skin that it was a pleasure to use it. I also know what wonders the Cuticura Remedies have done for a friend of mine, so I would recommend them to any one. Mrs. Delavan, 611 King St., Wilmington, Del., Nov. 15, 1909."

protector of the interests of his countrymen, he would go so far as to accompany them on their errands unless much was at stake. Perhaps Portol was Alcraente's tool and had bungled some important commission. It occurred to Orme that the secret of the bill might be connected with the negotiation of a big business concession in Alcraente's country. "S. H. Evans" might be trying to get control of rubber forests or mines—in the Urubaba mountains, perhaps, after all. In any event, he felt positive that the secret of the bill did not rightfully belong to Portol. If the bill had been in his possession, he should have been able to copy the abbreviated message. Indeed, the lies that he told were all against the notion of placing any confidence in him. The two South Americans were altogether too eager.

Orme decided to go for a walk. He could think better in the open air. He took up his hat and cane and descended the elevator.

In the office the clerk stopped him. "A man called to see you a few minutes ago, Mr. Orme. When I told him that you were engaged with two visitors he went away."

"Did he leave his name?" asked Orme.

"No, sir. He was a Japanese."

Orme nodded and went on out to the street. What could a Japanese want of him?

CUMMINS' PAPER URGES NEW POLITICAL PARTY

Des Moines News Names Eligible Leaders for Third National Organization.

Des Moines, Ia., July 21.—The Des Moines News, Senator Cummins' personal organ, in an editorial urging the holding of a convention at Kansas City for the purpose of forming a new political party, has awakened keen interest here.

The News outlines the nature of the call and proposes that progressive leaders in both parties shall be united in the new party, which is to be based on "the Rooseveltian principle of a square deal" and also have the Jeffersonian slogan of equal rights to all and special privilege to none as its motto.

Among the party leaders proposed as qualified to take the initiative in organizing the new party the following names are made conspicuous:

Theodore Roosevelt, William J. Bryan, Senators Cummins and Dole of Iowa, La Follette of Wisconsin, Hawbridge of Indiana, Gore and Owen of Oklahoma, Chapp of Minnesota, Blanton of Kansas and Money of Mississippi, Congressman Murdock of Kansas, Hubbard of Iowa, James of Kentucky, Sulzer of New York, Polahdexter of Washington; Clifford Pinchot, James H. Garfield, Tom Johnson and Joseph W. Folk.

The News declares that "these men can combine the Republicanism of Lincoln and the Democracy of Jefferson and provide the new party which the times are demanding and which would clear the atmosphere."

The Republicans and Democrats named will be asked to sign the proposed call which politicians here are pretty well agreed was reviewed if not dictated by Senator Cummins.

HIS ELOQUENCE WAS USELESS

Colonel Morgan's Futile Attempt to Persuade Cleveland to Grant Pardon to a Murderer.

Col. Franklin Pierce Morgan of Washington and New York never made but one great speech, and the story of it is pathetic. His audience was Grover Cleveland, then president of the United States, and his purpose was to secure a pardon for a murderer named O'Neil, in whom the colonel had become interested. "I'll never forget that day," said the colonel in telling about the incident. "I had told Dan Lamont the day before that I intended to ask Cleveland to pardon O'Neil, who was a creature of the dark places at times, but a pretty good fellow at that. Cleveland had taken the precaution to send to the department of justice and get the papers in the case. I got up early the next morning, had a massage and was feeling fit-up. I got in to see Cleveland and I spoke 20 minutes. Never in my life, before or since, have I been as eloquent as I was pleading for that fellow O'Neil. The end of every sentence I uttered brushed the edges off a cloud. I concluded my argument, confident that I had swept the president off his feet. 'Mr. Morgan,' he said, 'as that all you have to say on behalf of your friend? Mind you, he said 'friend.' 'Yes, Mr. President,' said I. 'I think that's all.' 'Mr. Morgan,' he replied, 'never as long as I am in the White House shall that consummate scoundrel—consummate scoundrel, mark you—get out of the pentagon.' 'What's the use of eloquence, anyhow?' concluded the colonel.

Memorial to Aviators. At Louisville there is a memorial which commemorates the ascent of the first Montgolfier balloon. The brothers Montgolfier were on friendly terms with the celebrated statesman Holmes d'Anglas, and they offered to make their first expedition in his park. After the famous ascent, Francois Antoine Holmes d'Anglas erected a little column to commemorate the event, simply bearing the date. The ravages of time are seen on the column, and the date is almost obliterated. To the casual observer this famous landmark is only a mystery, but Holmes d'Anglas evidently saw the possibility of memorial flight by erecting this modest memorial.

Chicago Gets Rush Food Orders. Portland, Me., July 21.—A meat famine in Portland for a few days will be one of the effects of the strike on the Grand Trunk, as the Portland wholesale houses and retailers in the western portion of the state have practically empty refrigerators. Heavy shipments are held up east of Chicago, and rush orders for commodities over other railroads have been wired to Chicago.

Wabash Shares in Trouble. Detroit, Mich., July 21.—The Grand Trunk strike has developed no disorder, and both sides seemingly have settled down for a long-drawn-out struggle.

Conductors and yardmen in the employ of the Wabash on the tracks that road leases from the Grand Trunk between Niagara Falls and Windsor have gone out, and as a result the Wabash is having considerable trouble in moving its passenger train over that division. No attempt is being made to touch the freight.

FREIGHT TRAINS ARE NOT MOVING

GRAND TRUNK TRAFFIC IN THIS LINE IS COMPLETELY PARALYZED.

WABASH IS HAVING TROUBLE

No Disorder Reported and Passenger Trains Are Running Close to Schedule—Canadian Government Hope for Arbitration.

Toronto, Ont., July 21.—No attempt is being made to run freight trains on the Grand Trunk railroad in Ontario. Through passenger trains are running fairly on time, while a number of locals have been abandoned.

The freight situation in this city is indeed serious. The yards and sidings are congested with cars. The ice companies are suffering and much perishable freight is being ruined. But worse than that the city is undergoing a milk famine and soon will suffer for want of meat as unfounded.

No Signs of Disorder. The only important train abandoned was the Cobalt Special. The trains that did go out were manned by special men and the terminal superintendent here handled the making up of the trains himself.

There has not been a sign of disorder in this city. The men keep away from the station and freight yards and base their hope of winning the strike upon the difficulties they believe the company will encounter when an attempt is made to move freight.

On some branch lines of the Grand Trunk the towns are getting into delivery of milk. At Stratford a shortage of coal is threatened. In some towns factories have been obliged to close down because of inability to obtain supplies.

Hope of Arbitration.

Ottawa, Ont., July 21.—Mackenzie King, the Canadian minister of labor, says he will use every opportunity which offers to obtain at least a temporary compromise between the striking conductors and trainmen and the Grand Trunk railroad.

The Canadian government is prepared to pay all the expenses of arbitration, and if both sides agree a board of arbitration can be constituted quickly, under the railway and labor disputes act.

Demands B. & O. Terms. Cleveland, O., July 21.—There will absolutely be no quarter given in the fight between the Canadian trainmen and the Grand Trunk and Vermont railways," said President W. G. Lee of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, on his return to this city.

"The Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and the Order of Railway Conductors will back the strikers to their last penny. The strikers will hold out for the same terms granted by the Baltimore & Ohio, and which every other railroad excepting the Grand Trunk and the Vermont has accepted."

Sheriff Disarms Guards. Port Huron, Mich., July 21.—Sheriff Wegonsell put a stop to the practice of nonunion guards arming themselves with rifles and revolvers at the local Grand Trunk depot. The sheriff noticed the men walking up and down the depot platform with guns and he immediately told the officials that the carrying of guns must cease.

Where Men Are "Pretty." A British investigator is ungallant enough to state that the reason why women are as a rule a beauty not attained by man lies in the fact that they are more indolent and not so prone to "exercise their brains" as men are. Intellectual labors and as a result, attention to business are, according to this authority, matters extremely prejudicial to the development of physical beauty.

In support of his theory this Briton points to the Zoro, a tribe of British India. Among them, it appears, women hold the place that in other countries is pre-empted by man. The Zoro woman manages the affairs of state, engages in business on her own account and does not restrict herself in the narrow field of woman elsewhere. On the other hand, the Zoro man has nothing to do but cook the meals and look after the children. The natural result of all this, says our scientist, is that the men of this singular tribe are "very pretty" and the women unusually plain.
